Classroom Incidents: See 2011 -2012 Handbook for Faculty in sections titled “Standards of Student Conduct” and “Removal of Students from Class” for additional information.

1. Have you provided the student with an oral and/or written statement that s/he has violated college policy, disrupted the educational process, or violated your classroom norms? Exceptions to this would be cases that involve threat of violence; in such cases, immediately contact College Police or your Division Dean.
2. Did you indicate that continued disruptive behavior will result in further documentation, including possible dismissal from your class?
3. If the behavior continues despite having provided the student oral and written notice, you may request the student to leave the class and remain out for the balance of the class period and the next regular class meeting. Please document reasons (specific behaviors) that led to removing the student for the class session(s).
4. An instructor may temporarily remove a student from class for up to 2 class sessions (the current and next class) for the following reasons: disruptive behavior; willful disobedience; habitual profanity/vulgarity; open and persistent defiance of authority; persistent abuse of college personnel; threat of force or violence.
5. If you remove a student from the class session and the next regular class meeting, you may request that the student see your Division Dean before returning to your class. If you require the student to see your Division Dean, you must advise your Dean by phone within two hours after the end of class, and by email/writing within 24 hours.
6. Provide your Dean with any documentation you have regarding the student, including written and verbal warnings, policies violated, and any previous actions you may have taken.

Incidents outside of the classroom:

1. Speak with the student about the behavior. If you feel threatened physically, contact College Police at (909) 384-4491.
2. Complete the Incident Report Form, providing a name if you know it; if not, provide a description of the person to the manager in your area. If the manager sees fit, a verbal warning may be given to the student at that time. Otherwise, refer the incident to the Dean of Student Development for follow up with the student.
3. If a pattern of disruptive behavior by a student is documented by various departments, the Dean of Student Development will follow up with the student and disciplinary action may be taken.
